About the Company

include website

The Lantos Foundation for Human Rights and Justice was established to carry on Congressman Tom Lantos' proud legacy as a leading advocate for American engagement in human rights globally. We seek to advance human rights and justice by advocating for the United States and other democratic nations to prioritize these fundamental rights for all global citizens, through campaigns and initiatives designed to raise awareness about key human rights challenges, and by supporting and empowering those on the frontlines of human rights struggles. We focus our work in four key areas as we strive to, in Tom's words, "carry the noble banner of human rights to every corner of the world". These areas include rule of law; religious freedom; global citizenship, with a focus on activism through art and internet freedom; and the Lantos legacy, which encompasses our annual Lantos Human Rights Prize and the Lantos Congressional Fellows Program. About the Winternship details and responsibilities

The Lantos Foundation's winternship intern will have the opportunity to be involved in the Foundation's podcast "The Keeper". Early in 2025 we will be working on new episodes of our Sports and Rights season, delving into the complex and often problematic ways in which the world of sports intersects and interacts with human rights issues. So far, the season has covered topics such as; "sportswashing", athlete activism, and the role of sports organizations in upholding and strengthening human rights. Our last episode told the story and struggle of a woman named Friba Rezayee, Afghanistan's first female Olympic athlete. We look forward to having an intern assist with organizing sound bites, editing, and sourcing possible intro and outro music options for the coming episodes in the podcast series.

For reference, episodes of our podcast (including the first episodes from our Sports and Rights season) can be found here: <https://thekeeper.lantosfoundation.org/>
